Aedan focuses their practice on complex civil litigation.

Aedan Dunn is a civil litigation associate at Todd & Weld. Aedan graduated from Boston University School of Law in 2021, where they served as a research assistant, law review editor, and moot court competitor and preceptor. During law school, Aedan completed internships with the Massachusetts Appeals Court and a local nonprofit organization, and they volunteered on a legal information helpline.

Following graduation, Aedan practiced civil litigation for two years at a large Boston law firm, handling a variety of complex litigation matters. Prior to joining Todd & Weld, Aedan first spent a year as a staff attorney at a national advocacy organization and then spent a year at a Massachusetts legal aid organization, where they further honed their commitment to strategic and practical advocacy for their clients.

Aedan obtained their Bachelor of Business Administration from UMass Amherst and J.D. from Boston University.
